

You are Invited! Join GES's New Private Practice Network

Are you working as a Gastroenterologist in Private Practice? Looking for professional development in business-related matters and leadership? Would you like to increase your share of voice amongst your peers?

Membership Benefits

GES's Private Practice Network (PPN) will facilitate a platform from which you can raise and discuss issues specific to private practice. In this network members will be provided with increasing opportunities for support, dialogue, education and professional development.

Membership will also include the opportunity for you to participate on various GES led PPN projects such as:

- Education initiatives
- Advocacy and member representation
- Career guidance and mentorship
- Philanthropic opportunities

Committee

Anil Asthana, Stephen Pianko, Adam Gordon, Albert Nwaba, Natalie Kiel, Simon Jakobovits

Join GES's Private Practice Network

Gastroenterologists in private practice (any proportion of practice) are invited to join.

GES members:

- GES members can email ppn@gesa.org.au
- Please also refer to 'Private Practice' section on the GES MyINTERACT app for ongoing updates.

Non GES members:

- Apply to become a GES member first. Please go to www.gesa.org.au for application details.

The Gastroenterological Society of Australia (GES) is the peak professional membership organisation for practitioners, allied health professionals and researchers working in the fields of gastroenterology and liver disease.
